

Hohenstein Lodge - Factsheet

Hohenstein Lodge lies at the foot of Hohenstein, the highest mountain in the Erongo massif, with sweeping views across rugged granite scenery and the plains of Damaraland.

The Erongo massif is the remnant of an ancient supervolcano. Its vast caldera collapsed millions of years ago, forming the distinctive ring-shaped mountain range seen today.

Granite domes, rock faces and open plains create a distinctive geological landscape.

Views from the lodge extend to Spitzkoppe, the striking granite monolith often called the "Matterhorn of Namibia" and one of the country's most impressive mountain formations.
